Medication Assisted Recovery Center

Medications

Your doctor will work in partnership with you to determine the best course of medication assisted treatment.

Suboxone (Buprenorphine)

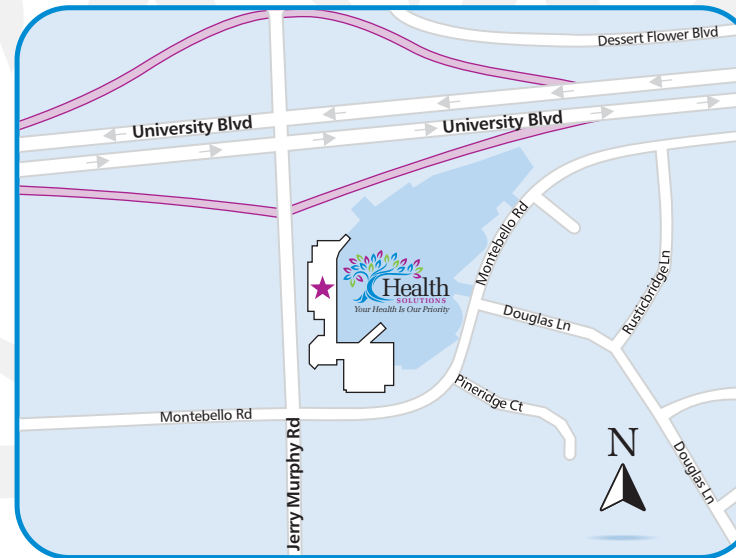

Suboxone is a medication used to treat opioid addiction. When taken daily, it decreases withdrawal symptoms for about 24 hours. This medication is indicated for pregnant women addicted to opioids. Suboxone was approved for use by the FDA in 2002.

Vivitrol (Naltrexone)

Vivitrol is a medication often used to manage alcohol addiction and opioid addiction. This medication was approved for use in the US in 1984. Vivitrol decreases opioid cravings, but may take longer than Suboxone to be effective.

Methadone (Dolophine)

Methadone is used to treat opioid addiction. While a single dose has a rapid effect, maximum effect can take up to five days of use. This medication was approved for use in the US in 1947. This medication is indicated for pregnant women addicted to opioids. Methadone reduction is suitable for those who wish to completely stop using drugs, but can also be used for maintenance for those with high levels of addiction and a history of numerous relapse attempts.

Breaking Free

Health Solutions can help you or a loved one break free of prescription drug use or heroin. Opioid addiction is not a moral or mental weakness. It is a chronic medical condition that results from changes in the brain due to repeated use of prescription pain pills or opioids. Once a narcotic addiction has developed it is not unusual for an individual to enter numerous cycles of attempting to quit then relapsing again and again. Achieving recovery, and ultimately remission, is often a long-term process and the goal of the MARC.

What The MARC Can Provide

- Evaluation for use of Suboxone (Buprenorphine), Vivitrol (Naltrexone), or Methadone (Dolophine).
- A complete medical evaluation to assess overall health and identify any potential healthcare issues.
- Comprehensive addiction treatment services.
- Co-occurring mental health and substance use treatment services.
- 'One Stop Shopping' — The MARC, Medical Center, pharmacy, OTC, lab, and treatment services such as individual and group therapy are all located at one site.
- The MARC is an inviting, comfortable, and warm treatment environment. We provide welcoming, non-judgmental care and treatment.
