Our Mobile Early Intervention Services

Your Health Is Our Priority

(MEIS) Mobile Early Intervention Services

Service Description

The purpose of Mobile Early Intervention Services (MEIS) is to assist individuals who are in a pre-crisis stage; for those feeling overwhelmed and dealing with significant stressors that if left unassisted could turn into an emergent situation.

MEIS team members assist people in need to determine choices they have, help to reinforce coping skills, and provide links to support networks and community services. Our mobile team provides a face-to-face response to wherever the need is present. This program emphasizes wellness and recovery principals that assist those in need through difficult situations.

Service Goals

- Help individuals before they reach the crisis stage to avoid emergency room and hospitalization with assistance, support, and resources.
- Assist law enforcement officers, emergency medical technicians, and other first responders with victims who experience a traumatic situation.
- Assist to de-escalate behavioral health situations that could increase in intensity.
- When appropriate, work to prevent incarcerations and stigmatization of persons with mental illness.
- Link individuals to medical, behavioral health, and other community resources as needed.

Who We Serve

The service is available to those living in the city of Pueblo, CO and its immediate surrounding areas. There is no out of pocket fee for this service, but MEIS team will bill insurers when appropriate. We assist children, adolescents, adults, and seniors.

This service can be accessed by law enforcement, emergency medical technicians, other first responders, medical and behavioral health care providers, family members, and individuals in need.
